

Consent

Consent is clear, knowing, active, and voluntary words or actions that are unmistakable in their meaning and create mutually understandable, clear permission regarding willingness to engage in (and the conditions of) specific sexual activity. Individuals who are incapacitated by drugs, alcohol or other means, including coercion, cannot give consent.

Amnesty

Any person who, acting in good faith, discloses any incident or knowledge of sexual misconduct involving alcohol use, drug use, or consensual sexual activity at or near the time of the report to one of the institution's designated officials will not be subject to disciplinary action for violations of its conduct and community lifestyle policies occurring in connection with the report, provided that behavior did not and does not place the health or safety of another at risk.

Retaliation against any participant in the reporting and investigation process is prohibited.

Individuals who violate Grace's policies and/or code of conduct may be subject to discipline up to and including expulsion or termination of employment.

Supportive Measures

Even if you don't file a formal complaint with Title IX, Grace can provide supportive measures such as:

- Academic assistance
- Assistance with housing
- Mutual no-contact directives
- Additional campus safety measures
- Counseling and health services
